ALLIED TROOPS GAIN IN DRIVE ON GERMANY

The War Today...

Substituting For DeWitt MacKenzie

THE GOVERNMENT has chosen today, when Allied spirits are lower than at any time since heavy bombing failed to break the Germans at Cassino, to tell us that we will be fighting through all of next year and into 1945.

It is just as well that way. The situation with regard to Japan has been obvious. But now, rather than when we are overrunning Germany, is a much better time to emphasize that the end of the war in Europe will merely give us a chance to hitch up our pants and spit on our hands.

In passing, and while awaiting the end of the news blockade regarding Holland, it is worth noting that the battle of Arnhem may be temporarily overplayed in its relation to the whole western front. Word that the British Second Army is swinging eastward toward Germany may mean that the Arnhem situation is decided and that we must get on with the invasion of Germany, leaving the city to be developed as other Allied forces clear the enemy from western Holland.

But to get back to Japan. It is a coincidence that the OWI report should come immediately after a new operation by our B-29's, of which we are inordinately proud.

Two years ago we were just as proud of our Fortresses and Liberators over Europe, doing a job which proved to be insignificant compared with the one ultimately required.

Of course that's not the big thing except as a reminder that our attitudes toward the war are not always realistic. The big thing is that we don't know when Japan will be whipped. While carrying out the two-year program already accepted, we'll have to go to work on another.

AT PRESENT, the crux of the situation seems to lie in China where lack of supplies, lack of political unity, inept and frequently corrupt military leadership, has permitted an exceedingly dangerous situation to develop. As a fighting force, despite the individual willingness of her millions, China is almost impotent.

As a prospective base from which Allied forces could clear the Japanese from the mainland and envelop his home islands, she is rapidly being overrun. Only a relatively narrow strip of coast remains toward which we can operate, and that by way of fortress Formosa. The much-touted Leda road, a narrow, often washed out military track, is but another eye-dropper in the supply situation. There is a slightest present indication that our leaders really expect any help from Russia.

None of this adds up to any doubt about the outcome of the Japanese war. Material for a book is available about how the Japanese are going to get slugged when we really get major fleets and armies of the world into combined action. But it does remind that Europe represents only one phase of a tremendously big job.

LONG WAR IN PACIFIC SEEN BY OFFICIALS

Set Minimum Time of Year And Half After European War Ends

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The job of crushing Japan is expected to require an "absolute minimum" of one and a half to two years after defeat of Germany, the Office of War Information said today.

Indeed, the psychological effect of an end to the European war is apt to favor the Japanese rather than the Allies, OWI said, figuring it this way.

"For the United States, defeat of Germany will mean that a half-way point has been reached in the global war, and will bring extensive changes in the war economy which might induce a let-down in effort and morale.

"To the Japanese, the end of the war with Germany will mean that Japan's war with the United Nations is just beginning. It might well heighten Japan's determination and fighting spirit."

OWI said its findings were based on information from the state, war and navy departments and the Foreign Economic administration.

Some Factors Aid Enemy While the odds of military strength, natural resources and the quality of fighting forces and equipment all favor the United Nations, OWI said.

Geography is another factor fighting on the side of Tokyo, OWI said, adding that before Allied might can be brought to bear it must be based within striking distance of Japan's homeland. To this end, the B-29 Superfortresses, while possible now only at periods of 10 days or more, were called a "definite advance."

The agency pointed out that tremendous shipping problems must be solved before a major invasion can be launched against Japan, and added it may be several months before shipping to be transferred from the Atlantic can be made effective in the Pacific.

Of Allied strategy objectives calling for opening of safe ocean routes to China, OWI said:

"At present, the course of the war in China is all in Japan's favor. Instead of securing additional advance bases from which to strike at Japan by air, the Allies have lost several in recent months."

Fire Truck Strikes Car, 4 Are Killed

(By Associated Press) COLUMBUS, Sept. 27.—Four persons were killed today in the collision of a fire department emergency truck and an automobile at the intersection of Livingston ave. and S. Third st.

One of them was Capt. Charles H. Ekstrom of the fire department. He was the 48-year-old son of Dr. John Ekstrom, former Ohio State university football coach and now chief of the medical staff at Ohio penitentiary.

The other dead are Elmer M. Hicks, 30, his wife, Virginia, 24, of Columbus, and Mrs. Alice Thompson, 25, of Stoutsville, Fairfield county.

Three were injured. St. Francis hospital reported Fireman Robert Gerstner in critical condition, while Fireman Edward W. Hart and Pvt. Melvin D. Thompson, husband of Mrs. Thompson, were hurt less seriously.

The truck was making an emergency run to a home on the south side where a woman had suffered a heart attack. The truck was speeding east on Livingston ave. and the automobile proceeding on Third st.

The car was tossed against a utility pole with such force that it was necessary to use torches to remove the dead.

WMC To Free Hold On Four Million Jobs

McNutt Is Also Planning Cut-Back In Munitions Program

(By Associated Press) NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—With the defeat of Germany 4,000,000 workers will be released from their present jobs, the munitions program will be cut back 40 per cent and manpower controls as a national requirement will not be necessary, Chairman Paul V. McNutt of the War Manpower Commission said today.

In an address prepared for delivery to the conference of the American Management Association on industrial relations, McNutt said:

"The forthright decision of government to strip away government controls on V-E day is a decision that in effect declares: You, American management, will now pilot the American people back into civilian production."

Calling for "more manpower for the must plants," McNutt said 68,000 new employees are needed for explosive and loading plants, 50,000 for ship production and ship repairs, 4,500 for airborne radar production and 8,700 to make cotton duck.

"The duration of the battle for Germany will be shortened if these manpower shortages are met," he asserted.

"No," he said, "I was not negligent. I was negligent about my sacrifice."

BORNE UNITS LAND IN ALBANIA TO BLOCK GERMANS

(By Associated Press) ROME, Sept. 27.—Allied sea and airborne troops have landed in Albania and on islands off Yugoslavia (the Allied command announced today, in operations to block German detachments fleeing from the Balkans toward the Reich.

"Land forces of the Adriatic" already were operating on a wide front in the Adriatic area of Albania, a Balkan air force command said.

No indication was given of the size of the units involved. Evidently the purpose was to provide still another facet to the manysided squeeze of the Nazis in southeastern Europe.

The Allied naval command said that Royal navy landing craft, supported by destroyers and light coastal vessels, had been operating since Sept. 15 among the southern Dalmatian islands off Yugoslavia.

The Allied command's announcement said land operations thus far included destruction of the German garrison at Himara, in Albania. The operation made use of the Albanian coastal road so precarious for the Germans that "the enemy was forced to send supplies to other garrisons by small seagoing craft," the announcement said.

The German radio said the landings were made "from Albania along the whole Dalmatian coast, which lies to the north in Yugoslavia."

Late Bulletins

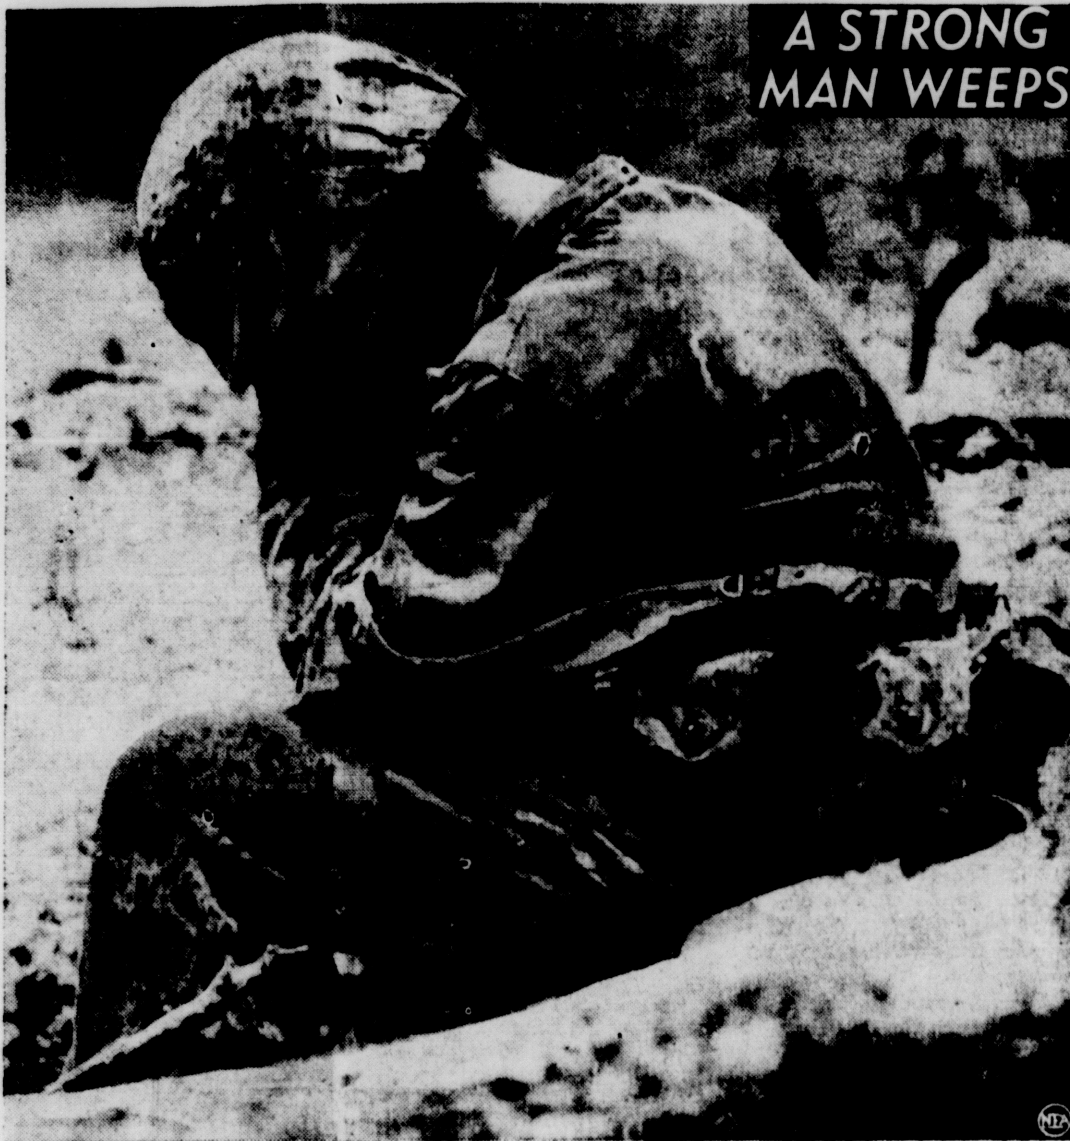

By DON WHITEHEAD WITH THE U. S. FIRST ARMY IN GERMANY, Sept. 27.—With the Germans battling desperately along the Reich's borders and with the weather steadily worsening, Allied armies faced the prospect today of having to fight a winter campaign before Hitler's forces are finally crushed.

BEFORE METZ, Sept. 27.—U. S. Third army troops today seized a bridge leading into moated Fort Priant, a key bastion in the chain of fortresses on the west bank of the Moselle guarding Metz.

WITH THE ARNHEM AIRBORNE FORCE, Sept. 26.—(Delayed)—This is the end. The most tragic and glorious battle of the war is over and the survivors of this British airborne force can sleep soundly for the first time in eight days and nights.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—NBC's David Anderson broadcast from the western front today that of the 7,000 to 8,000 British troops in the Arnhem pocket, at least 2,000 had been evacuated to the south bank of the Rhine river by this morning. Twelve hundred wounded British airborne troops were left behind and are under the care of the German commander.

Peacetime Military Training For Youth Endorsed by Hershey

(By Associated Press) NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Mal Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, today advocated peacetime military training for the nation's youth, asserting: "Today's warfare has changed in such a manner that the risk of unpreparedness is tantamount to courting disaster."

"This nation cannot allow itself to revert to the status of unpreparedness which was our admitted condition a few short years ago," he said in an address prepared for delivery before the industrial relations conference of the American Management Association.

"Our national growth requires manpower and armament in adequate numbers and quality to protect it from such sudden aggression as befell us on Dec. 7, 1941," he stated. "America must never again take that chance."

Peacetime military training, he added, should be designed to provide physical education and training for all since "this war has brought forth shocking facts as to the physical condition of multitudes of our citizenry."

"Nearly one fourth of the young men of the nation have been found to be physically unfit for service in our armed forces," Gen. Hershey said. "Much of this unfitness is avoidable. Past and present physical training measures have been inadequate and new and added effort must be expended."

Hold Ohio Soldier

BELFAST, Ireland, Sept. 27.—United States Army authorities reported yesterday a private from Haverhill, Scioto county, O., had admitted killing eight-year-old Patricia Wylie, whose ravished body was found in a field. They said the soldier would be tried by court martial.

Thieves ransacked both houses, pulling out all drawers and scattering the contents. Between $460 and $480 in cash was taken from a drawer in the Gorbey home and 15 $25 War bonds were stolen from the Wukotich house.

A neighbor, Mrs. Emil Weber, 655 Franklin st., told police she heard noises in the Wukotich home and saw a man standing by the back door around 7:45 p. m. yesterday. The radio and sweater had been carried out of the house and left in the yard, police said, leading them to believe the burglars were frightened away before they had finished the job.

Players Club Speeds Rehearsals On "Murray Hill" Production

Climaxing a general production organization meeting last night, the Salem Players club set in motion final arrangements for forthcoming production, "Murray Hill," to be given in the High school auditorium Oct. 11 and 12 as their first play of the 1944-45 season.

Director Howard Dodge and his assistant Elwood Hammell reported that rehearsals are progressing smoothly, work now being started on the final act of the three-act comedy.

Centering around the trials and tribulations of a 26-year-old niece who is being groomed for spinsterhood by her two dotting "spinster aunts," the play is the same that met with huge success on Broadway when produced by the Schuberts.

Two young men enter the scene and disturb the aunts' plans for their niece, and the play ends with the

TWO HOMES LOOTED OF CASH AND BONDS

Police today are investigating burglaries at two homes last night in which thieves got away with approximately $835 in cash and War bonds after making entrance by means of skeleton keys.

Both burglaries, one at the home of Joseph Wukotich, 659 Franklin st., and the other at the home of Grant Gorbey, 271 W. Seventh st., occurred between 6:10 and 10:40 p. m., police said, and both houses were entered by use of skeleton keys. At Gorbey's home a key was found in the front door and the family said it did not belong to the house.

Thieves ransacked both houses, pulling out all drawers and scattering the contents. Between $460 and $480 in cash was taken from a drawer in the Gorbey home and 15 $25 War bonds were stolen from the Wukotich house.

Maas River Area Covered In New Drive

(By Associated Press) LONDON, Sept. 27.—British and Belgian divisions moving a wall of men and armor eastward in a build-up of the invasion of Holland have reached the Maas river at points along a 40-mile front, and battled today within three miles of Germany.

Eastward and westward drives carried 10 miles or deeper on both sides of the corridor carved up to Nijmegen, and from there on a thinner line to Arnhem. They widened the Allied push to split Holland, and won another supply road northward.

Official silence still hid the fate of the British airborne division in the Arnhem area across the Neder Rhine, but it was indicated the news blackout there might be lifted soon.

The German high command asserted the pocket of crack sky troops has been wiped out completely. Berlin said 1,500 Britons were killed and 6,450 captured, 1,700 of them wounded.

South of this bitter battlefield the wedge into Holland had been broadened deeply by the British Second Army.

British forces struck eastward through mediocre resistance to Boxmeer, 13 miles southeast of Nijmegen and 13 miles southwest of Kleve. They were along the Maas (Meuse) for five miles from Boxmeer south to Groningen, and three miles from the Reich itself.

This thrust was south of the double-pointed British-American push into Germany which had carried within eight miles or less from Kleve, upper end of the Siegfried line.

Some 30 miles farther south along the Maas, Belgian troops reached the west bank of the river on a 10-mile front between Wessem and Dilsen, within sight of Germany. The Allies were closing up toward the Maas from the Boxmeer to Wessem areas for a solid front.

In the westward pushes, the British shoved out 10 miles to the town of Oss, 16 miles southwest of Nijmegen.

More Reinforcements Farther south, a British formation drove west from Eindhoven and linked with the right flank of the Canadian First army near Arnhem, forming a solid assault line through Turnhout to Antwerp.

American air freighters carried reinforcements and supplies into Holland yesterday. Berlin reported fresh British airborne landings yesterday southeast of Nijmegen and near Veghel.

The German air force, steadily emerging from its reluctant-dragon role, hit harder at Allied roads and columns, but Allied fighters downed 44 planes over middle Holland and western Germany in air fights yesterday.

The German high command said Allied attacks north and east of Second army attempts to relieve the Arnhem pocket. The enemy bulletin said the last resistance in the Arnhem area was broken yesterday, after 10 days of bitter fighting.

Heavy action still marked the long American front from Aachen to Belfort. Doughboys forged slowly ahead southeast of Nancy and east of epinal, where the Germans said a new American offensive was underway.

A battle of heavy guns continued around Metz, strongest fortress of western France.

Don't Make V-Day A Spree Day

How do you plan to celebrate V-day when Germany surrenders?

There are two ways to do it. One is to drop everything, rush out and have yourself a rip-roaring time until you pass out or drop from sheer fatigue.

The other way is to do your rejoicing in a sane, sensible manner—in an attitude of thanksgiving for what has been done, and a prayer for the speedy and successful completion of what lies ahead.

If you are a professional celebrator, you may choose the first way.

But if you have felt the impact of war at first hand; if a son or a father or a husband or a brother has fallen in service; if a loved one is in the Pacific, still carrying on against the undefeated Jap—then the chances are that you are not going to be in the mood for much hat-tearing or back-whumping.

Victory over Germany will mean only one thing—that the Allies have won the first round of a hard fight, and that a knock-down, drag-out battle still remains.

The middle of a fight is no time for a nationwide carousal or for conduct that brings violence, accidents and destruction of property.

The National Safety council offers a V-day suggestion that we think makes good sense. It is: "Don't make V-day a spree day!"

Three-Ring War

The approach of Allied armies in Italy to Bologna, at the eastern end of the Po valley, signifies a success of major importance. Yet, it probably will not be appreciated fully outside military circles, which alone can comprehend what was accomplished to shatter the Germans' Gothic line and what the accomplishment portends in the future strategy of the Italian campaign.

It is unfortunately true that a three-ring war cannot be followed with equal attention to all three rings. The Italian campaign, itself, drew more attention than the Pacific campaign when it was highlighted by the battles of Cassino, Salerno and Anzio. Both the Italian and the Pacific campaigns yielded to invasion of western Europe when that happened. But it is recalled, also, that at one time in the war the focus of American attention was the Solomons.

The ratio of attention at any one time is only important as it may affect the morale of the armed services. Our fighting men must believe that if they were civilians trying to keep track of what amounts to three wars being waged simultaneously, they would be in the same dilemma. When credit for sacrifice and valor is bestowed, it will not be on a basis of theaters of war, but on a basis of service, including service performed by Americans in dozens of remote and obscure places never mentioned in the news at all.

Local Costuming

It is a curious fact, brought to mind by Gov. Dewey's refusal to pose for photographers in 10-gallon hats or Indian war bonnets during his western tour, that political candidates are expected to affect these local costumes. On this side of the Mississippi, there is no such local pride in native costumes.

In the matter of hats, for example, no one insists on a political candidate in these parts having his picture taken in headgear of the prevailing fashion—a battered felt with a cabbage leaf brim. He is not expected to gear himself in baggy trousers and shoes with runover heels, nor to wear a factory identification badge, or even a wrinkled tie. It is assumed out of courtesy that the prevailing costume can be appreciated without being worn. Fancy shirts, high-heeled boots, smockers, tight pants and war bonnets are picturesque, but no more picturesque than some of the get-ups to be seen in these parts—and if that seems to be claiming too much, take a look around and imagine what a candidate would look like if he had his picture taken in some of our local costumes.

A SUDDEN precipitation of an event, dramatic and breath-taking, may exert a far-reaching influence on the life, its fortunes and destiny. It may be an uprooting occurrence, demanding swift and well-considered action, with decisions based on conventional rules and codes, even though the performance may be unique, novel and with employment of fresh methods and techniques out of the beaten routines. There may be public issues involved, in which initiative and bold strokes may be demanded in order to secure support from influential sources. There may be chances, gambles or extravagances but eventually spectacular achievement and proportionate rewards. Be wise in home or friendly ties.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to find themselves in a year of the sudden, revolutionary and unpredictable, with much commotion, change, uprooting or departures from conventional and orthodox ways and means. However, any radical measures must be revised and tempered to win public or community support and approbation, lest the more conservative element withhold cooperation. Bold strokes and determined efforts may break down private resistance and prevent estrangements. In the end good luck and success may descend "from the blue". Be kind and tactful in domestic situations. Shun excesses.

Whom Shall We Trust?

By James Thrasher

To date, so far as we have been able to learn, the Americans haven't found a single civilian Nazi in their progress through Germany. In every village they take they are assured that the town officials and other convinced National Socialists have left. Those who remain, they are told, are just plain, decent folks, who are glad to see the Yanks because that means the war is almost over. All they want is peace and quiet.

Well, some of the civilians are just that, of course. And certainly some of the most ardent Hitlerites have fled. But it's a good safe bet that the Yanks won't meet any admitted Nazis out of uniform if they travel all the way to East Prussia. It's going to be too easy for them to put on a bland face and protest innocence.

And the Yanks, being strangers there themselves, won't be able to do much contradicting. They can remember those pictures of Hitler's peacetime travels, when crowds jammed streets and auditoriums wherever he appeared. They can remember the newsreels, and the Hitler broadcasts with their background of thousands whooping and heeling.

They can conclude that the war and the earth itself haven't swallowed up these frenzied throngs. But when it comes to choosing whom to trust, the job isn't going to be easy.

In fact, it's going to add up to a costly, complicated and confusing problem of military government. The complications have already started at the top, as shown by denials by Secretary Hull and Robert Murphy, General Eisenhower's chief political adviser, that they have had peace dealings with any Germans whatsoever.

It is natural that they should suspect any peace overtures of coming from Hitler agents. And there might be the equally ready suspicion that any able and active anti-Nazi capable of heading a government has long since been liquidated by the Gestapo.

By now it is generally accepted that many Nazi leaders (though not the top ones) will succeed in "going underground" to work against the occupying forces.

They will know the country and the people, and this knowledge will surely be an irritating source of trouble to military government. It will be the same sort of trouble that the Nazis ran into in the occupied countries, though the Allies will not adopt the Nazis' brutal means of combating it.

Probably the Allies will have to look outside Germany for Germans who can be of immediate assistance and would be acceptable as the nucleus of at least a provisional government. There is not much of an assortment of politicians or statesmen to choose from.

But even a government of German intellectuals, scientists and professional men would surely be preferable to one built around the Russian-sponsored committee of German officers who come from a class which suffers from chronic delusions of Teutonic military grandeur, and whose uncaptured colleagues are no doubt already planning the next world war.

Hitler's reported plan to go to Japan seems foolish. One defeat should be enough.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

great deal of confusion arises in human thinking with those who get the word and the thing inextricably intertwined.

There is a great deal to be said for the behaviorist theory of psychology that consciousness, or thinking is no more than talking to ourselves. Most of our ordinary familiar life is a "mere unwinding of vocal habits."

Certainly much of a man's success depends on the use of words. Considering that, it is surprising that the medical profession has exhibited so little interest in the way people use words. There are a few Language Clinics attached to hospitals or medical schools in North America, but not nearly enough. Every Board of Education should have one, especially for scholars just beginning in the primary grades.

Causes of Backwardness

In the established Language Clinics it is a common thing at this time of year for mothers to bring in children four and five years of age and say—"Johnnie doesn't talk yet, but he'll have to learn in a week or two because now he's going to school." Or the child may have been rejected from school because his speech was not understandable. Often parents worry in good time before the beginning of school, and bring the child who is backward in language, being apprehensive about the child's intelligence, for intelligence and ability in wording are synonymous to many. This, however, is not true.

In the group of children who are poor talkers or late talkers, there are some of poor intelligence, but comparatively few. Such a case is that of a boy of seven, rejected from the first grade because he could not be understood, and could not fit into the group situation at school. He used many words that only his mother could understand. A careful test by non-linguistic methods showed that his mental age was far below his chronological age; in fact he was only a little more than three years old. Such cases are, however, in the minority and many children with low intelligence speak very well.

One group of late and poor talkers consists of children who have defective hearing. They have been a puzzle to their parents because they hear some sounds, and the fact that they are partially deaf has never been considered. They like to listen to the radio which is pitched so they can hear it. Careful tests show the real defect.

Word Deaf Children

Another and smaller group are those who are "word deaf." They hear sounds but cannot associate meanings with words. They are good mechanics and understand machines.

The largest group of children found in these language clinics are those classified as having motor speech delay. They have no physical or mental defects. Their intelligence is average or better and they hear and see well but their speech is backward. I have had one personal experience with such a child and since my experience has now extended to 30 years and the child is now a brilliant executive and the temporarily an efficient officer in the army my idea would be that those cases finally adjust.

Some of the poor talkers suffer from misuse of the voice, due to some experience along the line of development. For instance, it may follow tonsil removal when the child subconsciously spits his soft palate. In the same category are those who have not been trained after a cleft palate operation and those who talk poorly because of poor alignment of teeth.

For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, 335 E. 45th st., New York 17. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Rehearsal Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetics," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

A Salem Lady Spit

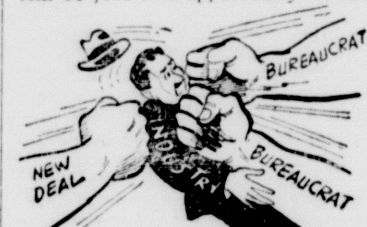

Up Acid Liquids For Hours After Eating

For hours after every meal, a Salem lady used to spit up a strong, acidulous liquid mixed with pieces of half-digested food. She says it was awful. At times she would nearly strangle. She had stomach bloating, daily headaches and constant irregular bowel action. Today, this lady eats her meals and enjoys them. And she says the change is due to taking ERB-HELP. Her food agrees with her. No gas, bloating or spitting up after eating. She is also free of headaches now, and bowels are regular, thanks to this Remarkable New Compound. ERB-HELP contains 12 Great Herbs; they cleanse bowels, clear gas from stomach, act on sluggish liver and kidneys. Miserable people soon feel different all over. So don't go on suffering. Get ERB-HELP. Lease Drug Stores, State and Lincoln Sts.

never solve this problem. It never even understood what a job. It has been consistently hostile to and abusive of American business and American industry, although it is in business and industry that most of us make our living. "In all the record of the past eleven years is there anything that suggests the present Administration can bring about high-level employment after this war? Is there any reason to believe that those who have so signally failed in the past can succeed in the future? The problem of jobs will not be easily solved; but it will never be solved at all unless we get a new, progressive administration in Washington—and that means a Republican Administration."

THE REST OF MY LIFE WITH YOU

by Faith Baldwin

CHAPTER FORTY

"Don't touch me—don't!"

"You admit it," Matthew declared in triumph. "You admit that if I take you in my arms, you won't have the strength to leave me or the will."

"The will," she repeated slowly, "the will."

"Well," he said, "what I said the other night holds. If you go you needn't come back."

"She said, after a moment, 'Very well. Please call Nils now, it's time the car was here.'"

Matthew opened the door and called Nils. A moment later he went out and got into his own car and drove to the office. He had no appointments but it was a refuge to him. Everyone would be gone. Elizabeth with her too intimate knowledge of himself and his wife, all the other people. He could sit at his desk and try to think this out.

He sat there and watched the clock. Her train had left now, the red carpet had been rolled up. The Century would be approaching. He got up, left the office, and drove to his mother's.

Mary was not astonished to see him. He saw, astonished that she was looking exceptionally well. After greetings, he said, without preliminary, "Judith's left me."

"She was here yesterday," his mother responded. "Sit down, Matthew. Will you stay for dinner?"

"Thanks, no. I've got to go to Westchester on a call. She was here? You know about this," he said accusingly.

"Yes," his mother told him. "I knew, as long ago as autumn, the step she was considering."

"You could have told me! You're on her side," he frowned.

Mary was silent.

He added, "My own mother. It's incredible. Women—"

Matthew shook his head as if to clear it. He went on, after a moment, "I've done nothing to warrant this. No man ever loved his wife more."

"Or given her less," said Mary, astonished at the sound of her own voice.

"That's Judith," he said: "an echo."

"No, I didn't understand when she told me, at first, I begin to now. It was my fault, Matthew, and Irene's."

"What have you or Irene to do with it?" he asked angrily.

"We conditioned you, my dear, in all your relationships, with us we were the givers and you the takers. I have been," she said slowly, "a rather negligent mother."

"I thought I was a good one. I was complacent about my sacrifice—"

"Sacrifice!"

"Yes, of course. I don't mean working for you, bringing you up, seeing that you had everything you needed to make you a strong man. I succeeded in your profession. I succeeded in that. But sacrifice just the same—living in and for you, possessing no personal life, wanting none. I was smug, even vain about it. Other women remarked, 'I didn't have a son. I lived for him.' And when Irene married you she lived for you too. Utterly subordinate. Perhaps she wouldn't have been as much so if she hadn't had my example before her. I was the perfect mother, so she would be the perfect wife. She lived for you too, and not with you."

"But Judith is different. She has opinions and principles, apart from you. She has her own strong personality and spirit. She can't be subordinated. Matthew. She has to stand level with you, on equal ground, and you haven't permitted her to do that. She too has given you everything she has to give, but she expected return—and she didn't get it because Irene and I robbed you of that capacity. And made you so selfish."

Matthew was white now, but his eyes were black with anger. He said, "You don't think much of me, you and Judith."

Mary declared, "I love you better than anything in the world, but I've ruined you. The proverbial mother-in-law, in reverse. I have created this situation."

He said heavily, "I told her if she left me she needn't come back."

His mother's eyes blazed like his own. "You told her that?"

"Well, why not?" he demanded. "Because she wants to get away from you?" asked Mary, "and think and come to some conclusion? Because she is trying to save your marriage?"

"Save it?" Matthew stressed. "Judith?"

"She's still young enough to believe in miracles," said his mother. She leaned forward and touched his hand, saying, "Helping you has been a habit with me for over thirty years. I can't break it. If there was any way in which I could help—"

He got up and went over to the window, then said, without turning, "There isn't," he added. "If you want to give up the apartment and come to live with me—"

"I'm sorry, but I can't, Matthew."

"If you'd rather I came here—"

he began.

"No, I have other plans. I've been waiting to tell you this. Lynn and I are going to be married, very soon."

He swung around on her. "You and Lynn?"

"Yes. Are you so astonished?"

"No," he said, "Judith's been rooting for it." He stared at his mother, then asked, "Why?"

"Absurd as it may seem to you," she told him, "Lynn and I are in love. We want to be together. We want to grow old together. Matthew, I have been in love with Lynn for a long time, although I would not acknowledge it to myself. You see, I had come to see myself through your eyes, the woman I had made myself into, for your sake—a woman with no life of her own, apart from your interests. All I thought I wanted was the best for you."

"That's Judith," he said: "an echo."

"No, I didn't understand when she told me, at first, I begin to now. It was my fault, Matthew, and Irene's."

"What have you or Irene to do with it?" he asked angrily.

"We conditioned you, my dear, in all your relationships, with us we were the givers and you the takers. I have been," she said slowly, "a rather negligent mother."

"I thought I was a good one. I was complacent about my sacrifice—"

"Sacrifice!"

"Yes, of course. I don't mean working for you, bringing you up, seeing that you had everything you needed to make you a strong man. I succeeded in your profession. I succeeded in that. But sacrifice just the same—living in and for you, possessing no personal life, wanting

Meantime, strict Allied blackout of all operations in this vicinity had been ordered to screen moves from the enemy.

Don't Make V-Day A Spree Day

How do you plan to celebrate V-day when Germany surrenders?

There are two ways to do it. One is to drop everything, rush out and have yourself a rip-roaring time until you pass out or drop from sheer fatigue.

The other way is to do your rejoicing in a sane, sensible manner—in an attitude of thanksgiving for what has been done, and a prayer for the speedy and successful completion of what lies ahead.

If you are a professional celebrator, you may choose the first way.

But if you have felt the impact of war at first hand; if a son or a father or a husband or a brother has fallen in service; if a loved one is in the Pacific, still carrying on against the undefeated Jap—then the chances are that you are not going to be in the mood for much hat-tearing or back-whamming.

Victory over Germany will mean only one thing—that the Allies have won the first round of a hard fight, and that a knock-down, drag-out battle still remains.

The middle of a fight is no time for a nationwide carousal or for conduct that brings violence, accidents and destruction of property.

The National Safety council offers a V-day suggestion that we think makes good sense. It is: "Don't make V-day a spree day!"

Three-Ring War

The approach of Allied armies in Italy to Bologna, at the eastern end of the Po valley, signifies a success of major importance. Yet, it probably will not be appreciated fully outside military circles, which alone can comprehend what was accomplished to shatter the Germans' Gothic line and what the accomplishment portends in the future strategy of the Italian campaign.

It is unfortunately true that a three-ring war cannot be followed with equal attention to all three rings. The Italian campaign, itself, drew more attention than the Pacific campaign when it was highlighted by the battles of Cassino, Salerno and Anzio. Both the Italian and the Pacific campaigns yielded to invasion of western Europe when that happened. But it is recalled, also, that at one time in the war the focus of American attention was the Solomons.

The ratio of attention at any one time is only important as it may affect the morale of the armed services. Our fighting men must believe that if they were civilians trying to keep track of what amounts to three wars being waged simultaneously, they would be in the same dilemma. When credit for sacrifice and valor is bestowed, it will not be on a basis of theaters of war, but on a basis of service, including service performed by Americans in dozens of remote and obscure places never mentioned in the news at all.

Local Costuming

It is a curious fact, brought to mind by Gov. Dewey's refusal to pose for photographers in 10-gallon hats or Indian war bonnets during his western tour, that political candidates are expected to affect these local costumes. On this side of the Mississippi, there is no such local pride in native costumes.

In the matter of hats, for example, no one insists on a political candidate in these parts having his picture taken in headgear of the prevailing fashion—a battered felt with a cabbage leaf brim. He is not expected to wear himself in baggy trousers and shoes with runover heels, nor to wear a factory identification badge, or even a wrinkled tie. It is assumed out of courtesy that the prevailing costume can be appreciated without being worn. Fancy shirts, high-heeled boots, sombreros, tight pants and war bonnets are picturesque, but no more picturesque than some of the get-ups to be seen in these parts—and if that seems to be claiming too much, take a look around and imagine what a candidate would look like if he had his picture taken in some of our local costumes.

The Stars Say

For Thursday, September 28.

A SUDDEN precipitation of an event, dramatic and breath-taking, may exert a far-reaching influence on the life, its fortunes and destiny. It may be an uprooting occurrence, demanding swift and well-considered action, with decisions based on conventional rules and codes, even though the performance may be unique, novel and with employment of fresh methods and techniques out of the beaten routines. There may be public issues involved, in which initiative and bold strokes may be demanded in order to secure support from influential sources. There may be chances, gambles or extravagances but eventually spectacular achievement and proportionate rewards. Be wise in home or friendly ties.

Those whose birthday it is are likely to find themselves in a year of the sudden, revolutionary and unpredictable, with much commotion, change, uprootings or departures from conventional and orthodox ways and means. However, any radical measures must be revised and tempered to win public or community support and approbation, lest the more conservative element withhold cooperation. Bold strokes and determined efforts may break down private resistance and prevent estrangements. In the end good luck and success may descend from the blue. Be kind and tactful in domestic situations. Shun excesses.

A child born on this day should have exceptional talents, skills and originality, its genius eventually breaking down opposition if it perseveres and holds to its optimistic attitude.

Whom Shall We Trust?

By James Thrasher

To date, so far as we have been able to learn, the Americans haven't found a single civilian Nazi in their progress through Germany. In every village they take they are assured that the town officials and other convinced National Socialists have left. Those who remain, they are told, are just plain, decent folks, who are glad to see the Yanks because that means the war is almost over. All they want is peace and quiet.

Well, some of the civilians are just that, of course. And certainly some of the most ardent Hitlerites have fled. But it's a good safe bet that the Yanks won't meet any admitted Nazis out of uniform if they travel all the way to East Prussia. It's going to be too easy for them to put on a bland face and protest innocence.

And the Yanks, being strangers there themselves, won't be able to do much contradicting. They can remember those pictures of Hitler's peacetime travels, when crowds jammed streets and auditoriums wherever he appeared. They can remember the newsreels, and the Hitler broadcasts with their background of thousands whooping and heiling.

They can conclude that the war and the earth itself haven't swallowed up these frenzied throngs. But when it comes to choosing whom to trust, the job isn't going to be easy.

In fact, it's going to add up to a costly, complicated and confusing problem of military government. The complications have already started at the top, as shown by denials by Secretary Hull and Robert Murphy, General Eisenhower's chief political adviser, that they have had peace dealings with any Germans whatsoever.

It is natural that they should suspect any peace overtures of coming from Hitler agents. And there might be the equally ready suspicion that any able and active anti-Nazi capable of heading a government has long since been liquidated by the Gestapo.

By now it is generally accepted that many Nazi leaders (though not the top ones) will succeed in "going underground" to work against the occupying forces.

They will know the country and the people, and this knowledge will surely be an irritating source of trouble to military government. It will be the same sort of trouble that the Nazis ran into in the occupied countries, though the Allies will not adopt the Nazis' brutal means of combating it.

Probably the Allies will have to look outside Germany for Germans who can be of immediate assistance and would be acceptable as the nucleus of at least a provisional government. There is not much of an assortment of politicians or statesmen to choose from.

But even a government of German intellectuals, scientists and professional men would surely be preferable to one built around the Russian-sponsored committee of German officers who come from a class which suffers from chronic delusions of Teutonic military grandeur, and whose uncaptured colleagues are no doubt already planning the next world war.

Hitler's reported plan to go to Japan seems foolish. One defeat should be enough.

Speech Problems of Young Children

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE LIVE in a world of things but very largely we think in a world of words. The words stand for the things, and should be recognized as being separate, but a great deal of confusion arises in human thinking with those who get the word and the thing inextricably intertwined.

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

There is a great deal to be said for the behaviorist theory of psychology that consciousness or thinking is no more than talking to ourselves. Most of our ordinary familiar life is a "mere unwinding of vocal habits."

Certainly much of a man's success depends on the use of words. Considering that, it is surprising that the medical profession has exhibited so little interest in the way people use words. There are a few Language Clinics attached to hospitals or medical schools in North America, but not nearly enough. Every Board of Education should have one, especially for scholars just beginning in the primary grades.

Causes of Backwardness

In the established Language Clinics it is a common thing at this time of year for mothers to bring in children four and five years of age and say—"Johnny doesn't talk yet, but he'll have to learn in a week or two because now he's going to school." Or the child may have been rejected from school because his speech was not understandable. Often parents worry in good time before the beginning of school, and bring the child who is backward in language, being apprehensive about the child's intelligence, for intelligence and ability in working are synonymous to many. This, however, is not true.

In the group of children who are poor talkers or late talkers, there are some of poor intelligence, but comparatively few. Such a case is that of a boy of seven, rejected from the first grade because he could not be understood, and could not fit into the group situation at school. He used many words that only his mother could understand. A careful test by non-linguistic methods showed that his mental age was far below his chronological age; in fact he was only a little more than three years old. Such cases are, however, in the minority and many children with low intelligence speak very well.

One group of late and poor talkers consists of children who have defective hearing. They have been a puzzle to their parents because they hear some sounds, and the fact that they are partially deaf has never been considered. They like to listen to the radio which is pitched so they can hear it. Careful tests show the real defect.

Word Deaf Children

Another and smaller group are those who are "word deaf." They hear sounds but cannot associate meanings with words. They are good mechanics and understand machines.

The largest group of children found in these language clinics are those classified as having motor speech delay. They have no physical or mental defects. Their intelligence is average or better and they hear and see well but their speech is backward. I have had one personal experience with such a child and since my experience has now extended to 30 years and the child is now a brilliant executive and temporarily an efficient officer in the army my idea would be that those cases finally adjust.

Some of the poor talkers suffer from misuse of the voice, due to some experience along the line of development. For instance, it may follow tonsil removal when the child subconsciously splints his soft palate. In the same category are those who have not been trained after a cleft palate operation and those who talk poorly because of poor alignment of teeth.

For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendingen, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetics," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

NEW YORK—Leopard and ocelot pelts, and science's clever imitation of these jungle-born polka dots in fur-like fabric, make bold-faced bid for eyes this fall in fashion accessories.

These glamorous spots before your eyes may be confined to a bag, a muff or a hat. They play up the drama of collar and cuff ensembles, vests for suits, dicky-like affairs with peplums that are worn with dresses. They make pockets, face revers, line coats or parkas—Eskimo-like hoods that snap on or off of coats, as illustrated by the snappy rust-colored trench-type topper, modeled by Columbia film star Georgia Carroll at the right. Trained with a mammoth-sized leopard bag, the face-framing parka lined with matching fur is calculated to satisfy any girl's quest for glamor.

So is the test-tube imitation of the leopard's spots, in a fur-like fabric of Dupont rayon yarn. Launched last year to line raincoats, it wins its spurs this fall as an adjunct of smart dress and suit ensembles. In the photograph at the left you see the leopard-printed fabric used to line a topcoat of dark green wool and to make vest-like jacket of the suit with which it is ensemble.

Household Hints

Wash all leafy vegetables such as spinach thoroughly just before cooking. Don't add any water, as the amount of moisture which clings to the leaves is sufficient.

When using an aluminum double boiler or steamer, put one half teaspoon of cream of tartar or vinegar in the lower compartment. This will prevent discoloration.

To make bar soap suds more quickly, rub soap into flakes on a kitchen grater, or make it into a soap solution or jelly by dissolving a bar in a quart of hot water.

If mildew stains persist after sudsing with soap and water, moisten the spots with salt and lemon juice and place the garments in the sun.

If you first soak dried fruits, beans and certain cereals, it will take less time and less fuel to cook them.

Give coats, sweaters, socks, mittens and blankets frequent airing and brushing as they are in year-round danger from moths.

The sun is the best bleaching agent, but if you are unable to use it, use only a mild bleach and use it sparingly.

Borax is a good water softener. About one teaspoon to a gallon of water is all that is usually required.

Vinegar will help remove corrosion on nickel fixtures.

You can also use window cleaner on mirrors and picture glass.

Q—Why might we all starve without lightning?
A—Lightning, streaking through the air at 60,000,000 m. p. h., releases nitrogen, in the form of nitric acid, falls to earth in raindrops, thus enriching the soil more than all the fertilizers in the world.

Q—What does a seat on the New York Stock Exchange cost?
A—One sold recently for $64,000.

Q—What is another name for the Devonian Age?
A—The Age of Fishes; fish are believed to have developed then. Our oil and gas deposits come from strata of that period.

Q—How much has our public debt risen in the last fiscal year?
A—More than $63,000,000,000.

Q—When was the first round-the-world flight?
A—Started April 6, 1924, at Seattle, Wash.; ended there Sept. 28, 175 days later. Four Douglas cruisers with two-man crews started; two finished, flying 26,345 miles.

Plans for conducting the National War fund campaign in Northern Columbiana county were outlined at a meeting of chairmen from the towns and townships, held Monday evening at the Lape hotel under the direction of Atty. Ralph Atkinson, chairman of the district.

Represented were East Palestine, Columbiana, Leetonia, Lisbon, Wintonia, Hanoverton and all of the townships in the northern half of the county.

The National War fund quota for this territory is $38,035, of which Salem will attempt to raise $20,000, leaving $17,735 as the goal for those who met here Monday evening. The campaign is expected to get under way the week of Oct. 16.

Several of the chairmen spoke briefly, as did representatives of the Salem Community Chest.

Orders One Foxhound. Gets Seven More Free

BRANSON, Mo.—Jim Owen, Lake Tanevomo sportsman and businessman, ran into a "Pigs is Pigs" situation and got more than he bargained for in a Railway Express crate.

Owen had ordered a female registered fox hound from an Eastern kennel. When he moved the crate from the car he discovered his new hound had given birth to seven puppies.

Unlike the station master in "Pigs is Pigs," however, the Springfield railroad man waived the question of extra charges and allowed Owen to take the new family home.

The tankdezer, a medium Sherman tank fitted with a removable bulldozer blade, combines work capacity with fire power, and was used in Normandy to break through hedgerows and lead the way for mechanized weapons and foot soldiers. It carries a 75 mm. gun and .50 caliber machine guns.

Detroit, St. Louis Tied Up With Five Games Yet To Go

YANKS BEHIND THREE GAMES, STILL GOING

Race Tightens As Browns Meet Yanks and Tigers Face Senators

Associated Press Sports Writer
Six Jakucki could be the key to the American League pennant race today for the footloose ex-soldier boy who was a June sparkler, but an August washout for the Browns had earned a most important victory that sent St. Louis back into a first place tie with Detroit.

With five games to go for the co-leaders and the New York Yankees who have been hustling along with their fingers crossed three games back, Luke Sewell had his pitching staff straightened out with five trusted starters. Detroit again had to fall back solely on Hal Newhouser who goes today and Dizzy Trout, who probably will go tomorrow and so on. Stubby Overmire's sore arm had complicated Steve O'Neill's problems.

Jakucki's feat, sensational enough on its own merits for it was a brilliant five-hit shutout over Boston 1-0, gained added stature for the rookie had not started in 16 days and hadn't won since Aug. 21.

After the Browns finished with Boston today the schedule calls for four "touchies" with the Yankees while Detroit entertains last-place Washington. Despite this, St. Louis has started selling world series tickets on the strength of their super-duper pitching down the stretch.

The Tigers avenged their defeat at the hands of Philadelphia by a 6-0 triumph yesterday with the help of homers by Dick Wakefield and Rudy York.

New York still has hopes, though remote and vanishing fast, after topping Chicago, 9-5. "Grandpa Joe" Heving set a new American league record for relief men by appearing in his 62nd game but Cleveland lost to Washington, 8-3.

The St. Louis Cardinals recovered their batting eyes and banged out 14 hits to beat Brooklyn, 8-7. Cincinnati took two from New York, 8-5 and 6-4. Pittsburgh drubbed Boston, 6-2, and Chicago shut out the Phillies 15-0, in the opened but bowed, 10-1, in the second of a two-night double.

INDIANS SLATED TO BE IN SECOND DIVISION AT END

First Time Since 1936 and Third Time In League History

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, Sept. 27.—Cleveland's Indians apparently will finish out of the American league's first division for the second time in 15 years.

Yesterday's 8 to 3 defeat by the Washington Nationals kept the Tribe three games behind the fourth place Boston Red Sox with only five games remaining.

Manager Lou Boudreau indicated he had abandoned first division hopes by sidetracking his front line pitchers in favor of a rookie in today's series finale with the Nats. Earl Henry, a southpaw up from Wilkes-Barre, drew the mound assignment against either Alex Carrasquel or Milo Candini.

Way Back in 1928
The last time the Indians finished out of the money was in 1936 when they closed the season in fifth place. They wound up seventh in 1928.

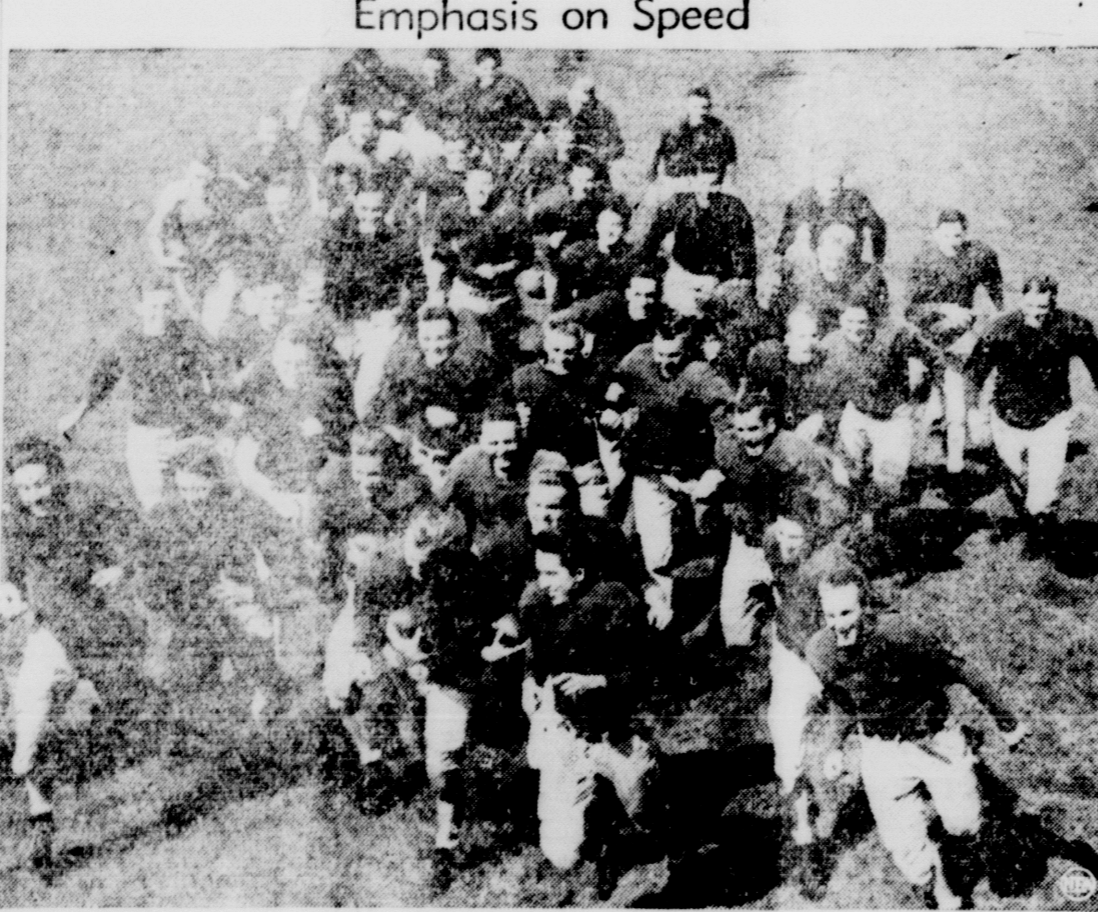

Boudreau used 20 players in an attempt to stop the Nats yesterday. The Nats collected 15 hits against Al Smith, Bill Bonness, Paul Calvert, Ray Post and Joe Heving.

Heving appeared in his 62nd game as a relief pitcher, breaking the American league mark of 61 set by Clint Brown when he was with the Chicago White Sox in 1939.

The only bright spot of the game was Boudreau's progress in overhauling Bob Johnson of Boston for the league batting championship. The Tribe punted two hits in four times at bat moved him within a single point of Johnson's 326.

RUMORS HAVE IT THAT OHIO STATE MAY DO BIG JOB

Coach Carl Widdoes Loaded With Promising Men, Including Horvath

BY JERRY LISKA
CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—A persistent rumor that the erstwhile "Baby Buckeyes" are primed to do a man-sized football job this season will be aired Saturday when acting Coach Carroll Widdoes sends Ohio State into its opener against Missouri at Columbus.

Tagged as Paul Brown's "Kiddy Corps" last season when they won only one Western Conference start and generally suffered the fate of 1943 civilian teams, the Buckeyes have turned up with 12 lettermen and more than a few diamonds in the rough.

Horvath Won't Hurt
The accent still is on youth in the Scarlet and Grey camp, with 41 freshmen included among the 56 players who started fall drills, but Widdoes has at least one advantage over Brown, now coach at Great Lakes. Back in the Buckeye fold is Veteran Halfback Les Horvath, star of Ohio State's National title squad.

Horvath should be a steady influence on a batch of exceptional freshman backs and with such battle-wise players as Tackle Bill Willis, Ends Jack Dugger and Cecil Souders, Guard Bill Hackett and Center Gordon Appleby up front, the Buckeyes may do some fancy stepping this fall.

Saturday's invasion by Missouri, edged 7-6 by Arkansas last weekend, should provide a sharp test for such yearling ball-carriers as Tom Keane, Bob Brugge, Ollie Cline and Dick Flanagan, all rated as capable successors to Ernie Parks and Dean Sensenbaur.

Salem, Leetonia, Clipper Games Heading Gridiron Slate During Weekend

Six district games, including the Salem-East Palestine clash at Reilly stadium, are in store for fans on Friday night while four games are booked for Saturday afternoon.

Leetonia, originally not carded for a game this week, has lined up McDonald, a Mahoning valley foe, for a home contest Saturday. McBride's charges will be priming for their second win in three games, having been tied, 19-19, in an opener against East Palestine.

Another top-notch Tri-County league game—one that may well indicate the story of things to come—will be the Columbiana-Minerva clash in Minerva Saturday.

By far one of the best aggregations in the three county competition, Columbiana rates a slight edge over the Minerva Lions, in spite of the fact that Minerva dished a 26-0 lacing to Lisbon while Columbiana defeated them 19-0.

Boardman At Lisbon
Boardman, strongest of all the Tri-County leaguers so far, will invade Lisbon for an easy try against the hapless Lisbonites. So far the Blue Devils have been unable to score and the promise isn't very encouraging this week against Rib Allen's boys.

The other Saturday game, also a league fray, sees Sebring, still looking for win No. 1, in a try at Louisville. The Louisville lads have the edge and probably will have an easy time against the charges of Coach George Stanford.

Friday night—when Salem attempts to stop Herb Gorbey and his East Palestine Bulldogs—the East Liverpool Potters will be out to revenge a 12-0 defeat from Alliance last year. This season the Stark county team travels to East Liverpool—and with low hopes.

Goshen-High, unsuccessful in two attempts this year, is hoping to break into the win column against the Canfield Indians at Canfield at 3 p. m. Friday. Morbit's crew, smarting from a 38-0 drubbing at Leetonia last week, will be out for another win.

Girard Has Hard Try
Girard's Indians meet the Struthers Big Red as both squads seek to climb onto victory trail once again. Struthers lost out, 6-0, to Rayen Friday after an impressive start over Lowellville. The Lowellville squad turned right around and laced Girard last week, a factor that gives Struthers the big edge in Friday's contest.

Wellsville's Bengals, coached by Wally Ingalls, are comparing talents with Steubenville Catholic Central in a fray there Friday. Beaten 12-0 by East Liverpool, the Irish are waiting for win No. 2 over the Bengal crew Friday. Ingalls, harried by injuries and greenness, is hoping for his first victory against Steubenville.

SPORT CHATTER

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—That war bond tour by Sweden's Gunda Hagges, Arne Andersson and Hankan Lidman is quite a puzzle to the track experts. American runners have been out of training since the Nationals last June and during the football season would merely be jogging around cross country courses. The speedy Swedes want to be home by Christmas—a month before the indoor season opens—but Hagges, at least, seems to be figuring on racing on the boards.

And the A. A. U., which normally would make arrangements for such a tour, seems to know little except that the cities where meets might be held have shown no great interest.

Old Maid Asks OPA To Help Find Husband

DALLAS, Tex.—If you don't believe it's so that people are funny, you should spend a day with Charles A. Bowman, official in charge of the Dallas information bureau of the Office of Price Administration.

Bowman says he has heard and seen everything on his job. There was a man who called up to get a priority to build a house on his back lot. He explained his wife wouldn't let him live with her.

And there was the woman who asked the bureau to send her a list of men. "I've been thinking it over," she said. "I've been an old maid school teacher for the last forty years and I want to get married. I've saved plenty of money and have a home and I want you to give me the names of a lot of men."

Plowed-Under Wallet Turns Up Ensuing Year

PLYMOUTHVILLE, Ark.—Charles Brooks was farming near here last year when he lost his wallet containing $100. Upon discovering his loss, Brooks searched the field, but with no success. The cotton which he was planting grew, matured and was picked.

This year he again went to the field to plow—and on a turnrow found his wallet.

Most of the money was in good condition, but the more damaged bills were taken to a local bank to be sent to the U. S. Treasury in Washington, where they were exchanged for new bills.

TANKS MEET SIEGFRIED LINE AND CRASH IT

LIVERPOOL POTTERY TIE-UP IS ENDED

(By Associated Press)
Kiln hands at four potteries heeded a back-to-work order and returned to their jobs after a one-day walk-out. James M. Duffy, National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, said today.

Duffy reported the men agreed to end the work stoppage pending settlement of a dispute which began yesterday. Unionists contended the company refused "to adjust the speed of a conveyor when a crew is short-handed."

The Homer Laughlin China Co., and the Elwin M. Knowles China Co., Newell, W. Va., the Taylor Smith & Taylor Co., and Harker Pottery Co., Chester, W. Va., were affected.

Duffy said the U. S. Pottery association and the brotherhood resumed conferences today on the biennial wage contract which expires Saturday.

Japs Can Send Many More Men Into Battle

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Here are a couple of sets of figures the Office of War Information used today to buttress its findings that it will take at least 18 months to crush Japan after Germany falls.

Japan has 4,000,000 men in the army, 2,000,000 more physically fit who have not been called up and 1,500,000 in the 17 to 20 age group who have not been drafted.

Japan is turning out airplanes (1,400 or 1,500 each month) "as rapidly as we destroy them and probably can maintain or even increase this production slightly."

and heavier arms. One Polish reinforcement drop was attempted—but the Poles landed on the wrong side of the Rhine.

Much about the withdrawal, which had been cloaked under a 48-hour censorship ban on news at the request of Montgomery, remained to be explained.

The British public waited anxiously for word of how many were killed, how many wounded and left behind and how many got back to the strength of their lines south of the river.

The normal strength of a British airborne division is 9,000 men. The Germans, in declaring the division annihilated, said 6,400 were captured and 1,500 killed.

UNRRA Concludes Its Conference At Montreal

MONTREAL, Sept. 27.—The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration ended a 10-day conference last night, warned by its director-general, Herbert H. Lehman, that its humanitarian projects could succeed only if all 44 member nations give their full support.

Lehman said the administration's responsibilities for aiding the needy of war-ravaged lands are now clearly defined and expressed hope the next UNRRA meeting would take place in one of Europe's liberated countries.
